The Southland Reactivation Act (SB 3189, HA 1) provides South Suburban communities with a new economic development tool that breaks the disinvestment cycle by lowering high property tax burdens and the staggering number of blighted or underperforming commercial and industrial properties that are not contributing to the tax base. It is proposed as a pilot for distressed Southland municipalities to “reactivate” their own tax-exempt or long vacant, abandoned properties to bring them back on the tax rolls, contributing much needed property tax revenues to all taxing bodies.

Despite its numerous assets and strategic location, the South Suburban region has experienced economic blight for decades. Tragically, COVID-19 worsened the pervasive poverty, unemployment and economic distress that exists, impacting nearly 750,000 residents and over 20,000 businesses. The Southland Reactivation Act is model legislation that offers an immediate opportunity to “build back better” and accelerate transformational inclusive economic growth throughout the south suburbs of Chicago.

How Will The Pilot Work?

- Creates an inducement limited to distressed property located in communities within Bloom, Bremen, Calumet, Rich, Thornton, or Worth Townships in Cook County.
- Eligible properties are restricted to those that are held by either a municipality or the South Suburban Land Bank Development Authority or the Cook County Land Bank Authority, two regional economic development partners created to prevent blight and its negative impact on effected communities.
- Lowers property tax bills for qualifying sites for 12 years. Property must be zoned for commercial or industrial use and designated by the municipality, via a lawful resolution, as a priority tax reactivation parcel, site, or property due to its long standing economic stagnation.
- Property must meet “but-for” clause for it to receive the Southland Reactivation designation, i.e. development or redevelopment has not occurred resulting in long-standing blighted condition.
- “Reactivation” of these tax exempt or long-abandoned sites will result in new investment and re-establishment of strong industrial & commercial properties that bring new tax dollars and local jobs to distressed, disinvested communities throughout the south suburbs.

Pass SB 3189, HA 1 to accelerate market-driven investment that brings new jobs and long-term sustainable growth to the tax base in hard hit South Suburban communities—among the most vulnerable in Illinois. Provide the Southland a new economic development tool that spurs private sector investment and tackles blight. Getting tax exempt properties back on the tax rolls helps alleviate tax pressure on existing property owners and provides important revenue for schools and government services—AT NO COST TO THE STATE. This could well serve as a model for other regions in the future.
